The oldest city of the world, 'the religious capital of India', 'the city of lights, 'Kashi', 'Benaras', call it by any name but you would be connecting to One- Gangadhar (Keeper of Ganga, a name used for Lord Shiva) as Vishwanath (Lord of the World) in Varanasi. The city is the paramount worship place for Hindus among all the other holy cities where they can plan their tour to carve away to salvation starting with the darshan of Vishwanath Temple.

The state of Uttar Pradesh is proud of its heritage, and Varanasi is part of this legacy with its unique culture and devotion to Lord Shiva who is believed to be its founder. The name of the city finds its connection with the Rivers Varuna and Assi joining to form Varanasi. Many of the great scriptures, epics, and works of art and music are credited to this place.

Death is of special significance to the city of Lord Shiva, because here He is believed to have mandated cremation rites at all hours of a day, unlike anywhere else. This phenomenon might be unusual, though highlights death being only an indication of a newer beginning. The Spirit of Kashi is all about such philosophies and beliefs; Kashi is more popularly known as Varanasi.
